

From Che to Castro:

Building Bridges with 21st-Century Cuba

With Daisy Rojas, founding member &
Director of Solidarity at Martin Luther King Jr.
Center in Havana

What's daily life really like in Cuba--and why can't American citizens travel there to see it for themselves? Why is Cuba included on the U.S.'s state-sponsored terrorism list next to countries like Iraq and Somalia?

Where: Martin Luther King County Labor Temple, 2800 1st Ave (between Broad and Clay) in Belltown, Seattle.

When: Monday, October 22nd, 7p-9p

Co-Sponsored by: Witness for Peace Northwest, Community Alliance for Global Justice, and Washington Fair Trade Coalition

For more information, contact: Amy Truax, 206.787.0657 or amy@witnessforpeace.org

THIS EVENT IS FREE AND OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

What comes to mind when you hear the word Cuba? Images that might pop up are the iconic faces of Che Guevara and Fidel Castro, Hemingway smoking cigars or drinking rum on a beach, classic cars and beautiful architecture. Or maybe you think of Elian Gonzalez, the Cuban Five, and the Bay of Pigs invasion. But what about actual Cuban citizens who live and make their home there? Daisy Rojas offers a rare insight into the daily lives of Cubans under the U.S. embargo. She will discuss her experience as an organizer at the MLK Center, a popular education nonprofit in Havana, as well as the state of reforms under Raul Castro. This interactive presentation will include lots of pictures and the chance to ask Daisy direct questions about what it means to live and work in Cuba in the 21st century.

Presentation in Spanish with interpretation provided
